(Channeling begins)

Djwhal Khul here. Tashi Delek.

Alright. "Fool Child Tarot" card is what I'm going to talk about and a couple of other little hints here about working with the energy of April Fools' Day.

We have this year, the Moon happens to be in a very healing Scorpio energy, as we go into April Fools' day but we also move into a time for about six weeks where communications are easily misunderstood. Or someone thinks they heard a certain tone in someone else's voice that may or may not have been there. So I'd say things will be a bit touchy.

When we work with jokes, spiritually minded, it is lighthearted humor, not something that is ill natured, degrading, shameful, etc. You can still put some humor into the day or anytime that you are being funny, so to speak, without hurting feelings or without creating harm. So keep that in mind in general. The point would be to make someone laugh basically. Laugh at yourself by all means and keep things very lighthearted, especially during a very strenuous time of spiritual growth and earth changes and economic stress, etc. It is very important to keep it lighthearted.

So I want to talk about the "Fool" or the "Child" in some Tarot decks; it's the zero, the very first card in the major Arcana, and how you can work with that energy. The Fool, like a child is carefree, has everything that they need already there, already provided. So you can wear that "everything I need I already have" or "everything I need is just easily at my fingertips" or "as I skip through life or have fun taking a journey", it is much like a child exploring in the forest or a hobo who is going across the country or maybe someone on a walkabout. There is no particular destination. It is all about fun in the moment in the journey and knowing that everything is readily available or already there. So this gives you a chance to kind of take a look around.

We worked with reprioritizing the manifestation list last week. This week, look around with how resource rich you are, how many things are right there, how much food is actually in the cupboard and how many coins you have tucked away in that little jar or maybe you have jars and jars of them because you save your coins. Take a look in terms of resource rich like "Oh look there is that fabric that I forgot about and I can recover all the pillows and redecorate for no charge". That kind of thing.

It is also a good time for yard sales, combining resources, like, the whole block, the whole family or the entire town setting up yard sales so that the neighboring communities come over for the whole town doing the yard sale on the same weekend. That sort of thing.

The vibrations of just trading, you know, "I've got these two extra kitchen table chairs and you've got two extra tall stools that you are not using, how about we trade?" That sort of thing. I see things moving around like that during this springtime period, particularly through maybe about the end of May, almost the end of May.

So resource rich, "Everything is already here. How can I take advantage of that?"

Alright. Dear Ones, thank you and my love to you,

Djwhal Khul
