(Channeling begins)

Djwhal Khul here. Tashi Delek.

Alright. The channel lost her voice during the week so the channeling will be a little bit softer than normal but still the energy is here.

What I want to address during this time period would be the changes in store for Humanity. We’re going through quite a time period with weather changes and probably you’re having storms right now in certain parts of the world.

Your comet Ison, looping back around, is going to shake up more weather. There's some, I think, real danger that its trajectory has changed and could in fact at least graze the earth or if not make a bigger impact and have some fallout.

So we have, I think, between NASA and friendly ETs a lot of help trying to break that up or redirect it but we'll see where it goes. So the changes that are in store for Humanity are going to be some inconveniences.

Uranus is still, we're still in a major transformation time until May of 2015 with Uranus which just changes everything on a dime. You think you can count on something and then it falls through, and the next thing is there and it falls through; and that sort of thing.

So you have to go with the flow during this time period and also to accept that whatever is happening must be happening for higher good. In some way there is a blessing in it. So even if it's, you know, very cold and your power is knocked out, find a blessing in it. You really want to look with gratitude toward the future.

I'll also say that during this week we have the end of Hanukkah, Mars moving into Libra, which I think will temper things. There will still be troubles with communications and watch out for exaggerated communications or hype, spin, big story telling, that sort of thing. Just keep your truth filters working and always the yum or yuk is the best test.

Alright Dear Ones. As always, thank you and my love to you.
