(Channeling begins)

Djwhal Khul here. Tashi Delek.

Alright. And Namaste and a number of other greetings that basically say "The highest point in me sees the highest point in you and I greet you soul to soul, Monad to Monad, Spirit to Spirit, in Peace."

Alright. This week we have a lot of inner planes activities and a Full Moon coming and really some sort of spontaneous shamanic experiences with what I call bilocation, sometimes trilocation as well for those who are most advanced.

So is bilocation real? Yes! Absolutely! One of the things you can work with in your dream state or in an awakened meditation is just to simply ask to be experiencing a little bit of something.

Now this is not when the mind wishes it was somewhere else or something. This is literally your multi-dimension consciousness being aware of being in more than one place at a time or being, say, here sitting in your home and then there poised on a mountaintop. And then you flash back to your home.

I liken this to essentially if you walk outside and look at the sky. You know the sky is the sky, is going to be there and it will be different depending upon whether it's daytime or nighttime. Certainly the night sky changes with the months and the seasons and whatnot. And if you're looking up and seeing the Pleiades and another time you're looking up and seeing Venus brightly, shining, or whatever, maybe Mars is more prevalent. So you're standing in the same spot but the scenery around you has changed.

If you can work with timelines, standing in one spot, see it today, see it two million years ago. That kind of thing. Play as much as you can. If you want the more complete teaching, we are going to doing one called "Bilocation Practice" on 12-13-2016; December 13. And that could be a bit more extensive but at least play as much as you can on your own and see what begins to happen.

Alright Dear Ones. As always, thank you and my love to you.
